by Laura Perdew on October 7, 2014

Dr. Debra Stout, of DoctorS Nonprofit Consulting, has agreed to begin assisting the Fullerton Collaborative with administrative and technical assistance as of October 1. In this capacity, she will team with Pam Keller, the executive director, to facilitate and coordinate the Collaborative's grants, projects, programs and events, including the Faces of Fullerton in April. The Fullerton Collaborative is a California nonprofit public benefit corporation that brings members together to improve the health of Fullerton.

Dr. Stout has worked in the business, education and non-profit community in Southern California for over 20 years. This including many years working for the Orange County Department of Education, where she helped coordinate and facilitate countywide prevention and positive youth development efforts. She has volunteered on the Board of Directors and Advisory Boards for a variety of local and county-wide efforts for troubled youth and related issues. Dr. Stout is on the faculty at both California State University Fullerton and the University of the Rockies.

Today she uses her experience to assist a variety of non-profit programs in Southern California thru DoctorS Nonprofit Consulting which she founded with her husband Dr. Dallas Stout in 2004. They specialize in the needs of Orange County non profit agencies. Their combined background of over 40 years working in the Southern California non-profit, business, education, management and coalition-building environments at all levels gives them a unique perspective. Because of their visible commitment and involvement in the fields of troubled youth, violence and gang prevention, and the prevention and treatment of substance abuse, the Stouts are widely regarded as countywide leaders in these causes.

“We chose Dr. Debra Stout for her skills in grant writing and evaluation as well as her enthusiasm for working with the non-profits in our community,” said Fullerton Collaborative Executive Director Pam Keller, “I am thrilled to have this opportunity to work with Dr. Stout and continue to nurture the Fullerton Collaborative as it grows”

The Stouts provide a broad array of consultation services to non-profit and grassroots groups, coalitions, and agencies throughout Orange County. They specialize in all aspects of research including program evaluation as well as program design and grant writing. They are also available for staff or volunteer training and public speaking requests.
